 The SPEAKER. Was the gentleman present, listening, when his name was called?

Mr. KING. I was in the gallery with some constituents.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman does not bring himself within the rule.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. Speaker, I have a general pair with the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. STEELE. This seems to be a party question. I desire to withdraw my vote of "yea" and answer "present."

The name of Mr. BUTLER was called, and he answered "Present."

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, I am paired with the gentleman from Georgia, Mr. BELL. I withdraw my vote of "yea" and desire to be recorded "present."

The name of Mr. KNUTSON was called, and he answered "Present."

On motion of Mr. GOOD, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was passed was laid on the table.

Mr. GOOD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that House resolution 14, which is a similar resolution, reported to the House on September 2 last, do lie on the table.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa asks unanimous consent that House resolution 14 lie on the table. Is there objection?

Mr. GARRETT. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, may I ask the gentleman from Iowa if this is a similar resolution?

Mr. GOOD. It is a similar resolution in many respects, not quite so much in detail as the resolution which has just been adopted.

Mr. GARRETT. Are we to understand from the gentleman's request that this resolution lie on the table, that the performance through which we have just gone is the last official insult that a mad majority intends to offer to the President of the United States, or are there other shocks in store for us?

Mr. GOOD. Mr. Speaker, the request that this resolution lie on the table is the ordinary, parliamentary procedure. It is not offered as an insult nor was the resolution just passed by the House offered as an insult to the President of the United States.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read:

To the House of Representatives:

I return without my signature H. R. 517, entitled "An act amending an act to provide for drainage of Indian allotments of the Five Civilized Tribes, approved March 27, 1914," because it seems to me to reduce the number of safeguards thrown around the property of our Indians, when there is no apparent necessity for doing so.

WOODROW WILSON.

THE WHITE HOUSE,
 15 February, 1921.

Mr. SNYDER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the veto message, with accompanying papers, be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

The motion was agreed to.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF NEW CARLISLE, IND.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read:

To the House of Representatives:

I am returning herewith, without my signature, H. R. 8881, An Act for the relief of the First National Bank of New Carlisle, Indiana. This measure, if it became law, would appropriate out of the Public Treasury the sum of $923.25 to pay the First National Bank of New Carlisle for war savings stamps and thrift stamps stolen from the bank. It would transfer to the United States the risk of loss on unregistered stamps for which the bank was responsible and which it held in its own custody at its own risk. It would involve the use of public funds to relieve a private banking institution of the consequences of its own misfortune. The stamps in question were unregistered and could not be identified, so that in any event
